Alexandra joined Hughes Fowler Carruthers in 2014 after qualifying as a family solicitor at a central London law firm in 2013.

Alexandra specialises in the resolution of arrangements on the breakdown of a relationship. Her work covers all areas of family law, including divorce, financial remedy proceedings and private law children law matters.

Most of Alexandra's cases are high value, many with an international element and involve complex corporate structures, jurisdiction issues and trusts. She has particular expertise and interest in advising on matters involving children on relationship breakdown, including both financial provision and living arrangements, national and international relocation.

Alexandra also advises on pre-nuptial and post-nuptial agreements.

Alexandra is quick to identify ways of settling a matter but, when needs be, is also an incisive and robust litigator.

Alexandra works with Mark Harper, Renato Labi and Bryan Jones, who describe her as "highly committed, intelligent and focused" and "an accomplished lawyer who works to get the very best deal for her clients".

Interests: netball, running, theatre.
